Carolyn is the assistant manager of her family dairy, Tol Je So Farm in Pennsylvania. Managing and completing a multitude of daily tasks with the milking herd and young stock. She graduated from Wilson College with a bachelor's of Science, minoring in Biology and photography. The love of different shades of cattle started at a young age at home and through a strong 4-H & FFA judging experience. Judging has taken her near and far to see great cattle. She was a contestant in the International dairy judging competition at the Royal Highland Show in Scotland and toured agriculture in Europe. Photography has also taken her to see great cattle for stud catalogs, grace the show and sale rings. When not taking photos or managing the farm, she can be found on the halter of her show cattle from local to national shows. She is a member of class 13 of (YDLI) Young Dairy Leaders Institute through the Holstein Foundation. A 4-H and FFA volunteer, giving back to the next generation by leasing show cattle, mentoring youth with showmanship clinics and dairy judging skills. With the recent honor of being inducted into the Maryland 4-H All Star in 2024.
